

Intern (m/f) for the Sales Steering Team in New York

Start: mid of January 2007

Lufthansa Cargo, the market leader in the international airfreight industry is looking for a motivated and qualified student (m/f) who commits herself/himself and uses own initiative to support our Sales Steering Team in New York.

Ideally you are studying Business Administration with a focus on Logistics and have completed your basic studies. You should be available for a period of six months, starting mid of January 2007

Your Tasks:

- Assistance of the Sales Steering team
- NYC FS weekly and monthly monitoring and reports (budget fulfillment, yield and load factor monitoring&)
- Ad-hoc queries (Cognos database)
- Participate in conference calls
- Update of presentations, guidelines and schedules for workshops / meetings
- Report development

Your profile

- Currently enrolled in Logistics or Operation Management classes and have an interest in pursuing a career in Logistics or Operations Management
- Logistics experience is a plus
- Able to work independently
- Excellent interpersonal, communication, and administrative skills (incl. Word, Excel, Power Point, and Outlook)
- Strong analytical skills desired
- Organized approach to work
- Ability to work productively on own initiative and as well as part of a team
- Ability to prioritize work flows and work under time pressure
- Ability to cooperate with and support colleagues

The monthly remuneration is currently 550EUR and Lufthansa Cargo will provide you with a roundtrip ticket to New York.

Please apply on the Lufthansa Corporation website www.be-lufthansa.com and mention 'Internship NYC FG/S Sales Steering Team' as identifier in your letter of motivation.

Please be aware that we only accept applications in English.