WEIL

- (B) Else Weil posed for the "Stuttgardia Sculpture", outdoor wall decoration at Stuttgart City Hall. She became manager of the Jewish Old People's Home at Wagenburg Strasse in Stuttgart. She emigrated to England in the 1930s and died when visting her brother Sigmund in Heidelberg. She was buried at the Jewish section of Prag Cemetery in Stuttgart.
- (C) In 1923 Sigmund Weil became the leader of the orthopedic department at Breslau Surgical University Hospital in 1933 he was forced to leave this hospital because of his Jewish origin. In 1946 he was appointed leader of the Orthopedic Hospital of Heidelberg University and stayed in this position until 1954, estimated because of his professional reputation. Today there is a Sigmund-Weil-Klinik in Bad Schoenborn (south of Heidelberg) named after him. During World War I he was a medical officer at the west front (France) and was highly decorated (iron cross I + II, knight's cross).
