By 1819 Salomon Wolf Model mentioned two more children (1 boy + 1 girl) who had died in early childhood.

(A) In 1766, when all Jews were expelled from Duchy Pfalz-Neuburg, Elias Model (1744 - ca 1815) was the only Jew who was granted a lifelong "free pass" for trading in Pfalz-Neuburg. He was a son of Wolf Elias Model (Court Jew of Ansbach Markgrave) who had applied in 1755 for a "free pass" with Churfuerst (= Elector) Carl Theodor in Mannheim.

(B) Sabina Model (ca 1754 - 28 Apr 1821) died in Neuburg and was buried at Pappenheim Jewish cemetery, because Neuburg never had a Jewish cemetery and not even a Jewish community during the 1700s and 1800s. In 1814 Sabina Model had bought house nr 82 at Herrengasse for 1.800 Gulden from Freiherr von Sainte Marie Eglise, director of Royal Superior Court of Justice and Royal Court of Appeal (in German = Direktor des Koeniglich Bayerischer Kammer- und Appellationsgerichts). Becoming a house owner finally gave Sabina Model and her son Salomon Model the right of settlement in Neuburg, so they were no longer just tolerated. But still in 1816 representatives of the citizens of Neuburg tried hard to get rid of all members of the Model family and their servants.

Sabina Model's given name was Sophie, and it's not clear whether she was born in 1754 or 1761. Sabina + Elias Model had but one daughter = Sara Model, who in 1812 got married to traveling jewelry trader David Samson Helbing who had been accepted to settle in Ellingen but also was tolerated to live in Neuburg. David Samson Helbing's wife Sara already died on 01 Mar 1813 and was buried at grave 233 at Pappenheim Jewish cemetery (according to 1938 gravelist). The widower thereafter married Karoline (Kindel) Weil from Wallerstein. This couple produced a daughter Fanni Helbing (born 01 Jul 1817 in Munich) who on 01 Sep 1840 married District Rabbi Elkan Selz in Harburg. He was born in Harburg on 19 Sep 1808 and died in Munich on 30 Apr 1891. His wife Fanni died in Munich on 27 Mar 1897. Both were buried at Munich's old Jewish cemetery.
